CORAM : R. M. LODHA &
J.P. DEVADHAR,JJ

DATED : 2nd September 2004

ORAL JUDGMENT (Per R.M. Lodha,J.):

Heard.

2. The learned Company Judge found that there was serious dispute in respect of the appellant's claim. It is not in dispute that in response to the notice given by the appellant to the respondent under Section 434 of the Companies Act, 1956, the respondent company sent reply immediately and inter-alia set up its reply thus:

> "3. My client state that one Shri Shailesh Asalraj Jain is a Finance Broker. My clients had friendly relations with him. A few months back my clients M/s.Himanshu Synthetics Pvt. Ltd. were in need of some finance. Since my clients were knowing Shri Shailesh Asalraj Jain, they requested him to arrange some money. He agreed to do so and took my client signature on some blank Bills of exchange and promised to arrange the finance from his own customers against those bills of exchange. However, Shri Shailesh Asalraj Jain did not arrange any finance to my clients. My clients were demanding back those blank bills of exchange. He was promising to return them back to my clients duly cancelled but so far as he has not done so."

3. It is apparent from the available material that the respondent company has denied receipt of the amount of Rs.2,40,000/- as alleged. The learned Company Judge was satisfied that in the light of the defence set up by the respondent company that the amount of Rs.2,40,000/- was in fact not received and there being dispute with regard to the presentation of Bill of Exchange, the case for entertaining the company petition was not made out and that appellant must pursue appropriate remedy. We hardly find any justifiable ground to take a different view.

4. The learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the time taken in the winding up petition and the appeal needs to be excluded to enable the appellant to pursue appropriate remedy for redressal of his grievance. He invited our attention to the judgment of the Division Bench of this Court in the case of Maharashtra State Farming Corporation Ltd. v. Belapur Sugar and Allied Industries Ltd., 2004 (3) Mh.L.J. 414.

5. The respondent company has not chosen to appear despite service. We are satisfied that the appellant pursued winding up petition and the appeal diligently and bonafide and the time taken in the said proceedings deserves to be excluded. We, accordingly, observe that the time taken by the appellant in prosecuting the winding up petition and the appeal shall be excluded under Section 14 of the Limitation Act, 1963 in case the appellant prosecutes the ordinary remedy of suit for recovery of due amount from the respondent-company.

6. Appeal fails and is dismissed with the observations aforemade.

7. No costs.
